At one point in time, my family and I became invisible to our families, friends, and the rest of the world. We felt unnoticed and ignored. I made myself as small as possible. Noticing the absence was the hardest part. In that moment, I didn't want to be missed. After nearly two years of solitude, we've finally been made visible again. This is our story, about how we got here. It was a boring evening. I was tired and just wanted to get some rest. I left my family at home with my parents and my best friend. I walked away into the sunset, closing the door behind me. I felt peace. I felt free. It was a beautiful evening. I couldn't wait to be alone. I sat down to meditate. I listened to my favorite song and concentrated on the peaceful sounds. I sat still and calm as I held my hands in front of me. Slowly, I closed my eyes, and my mind opened to the divine. I opened to a new world. I left the four walls of my room and into a new world. I felt like a star in a faraway galaxy. I knew that I was now out of my comfort zone. I couldn't go back to the house. I had to be brave. This was my space. This was my moment to truly be invisible. I was no longer afraid. I wasn't scared to be alone. I didn't care what anyone thought or said. I felt free. I felt at peace. What It's About By the end of the day on January 4, 2016, everything seemed to fall apart. My husband left. I was left alone. My life was destroyed. Everything was my fault. I couldn't take care of myself. I tried hard to find another man, to fix my life, to get back to what I once was. 77a5ca646e
